

I oppose the attempt by the Consumers Bankers Association to weaken the current Indiana Telephone Privacy Law. The point of this law was to prevent unwanted phone solicitations, period. What the CBA is attempting circumvents that. It's one thing to be contacted about a specific account issue, but I do not want calls from any banker or lender that I may have a relationship with that result in their attempt to solicit other business from me. Thank you.